reakness of the sailors team was soon apparent. For a long time it was a case of them defending and when Caldwell was so badly burt that he was only to passenger their plight was worse than ever. Kelly was the leading light of the suppers forwards and on several occasions he had the hardest of luck, shots from him hitting the post and bur. The game never reached anything like a high standard; Mason on the suppers right was offside nearly a dozen times in a short space of time; in fact this was a feature of the grame and became monohad been mainly responsible for what goals, all scored by Court, centre forforward work was accomplished but the sailors did not seem to have more than three playing forward and concentrated on defence. Hortop put Sutherland away with a dear run and winding up on the gualline he shot hard at an impossible angle when the sappers three inside forwards, unmarked, were waiting to open the scoring. Thus are easy chance was

A run by the sappers forwards finished with Hortop neeting with a hard shot, Dugdalo's view appearing to be obscured by a couple of defenders. Nicholis and Adams made a few sorties, the dormer being put offside many times by Morrish playing well up. There was a revival by the sallers for a time but Coxon and Morrish never appeared fully extended and indulged in gallery tactics, which had the sailors been better represented, have probably cost them a goal. There was a lot of uninteresting play, more offairles but very few fouls, the referee appearing to have the game well in hand, Twice the suppers forwards were past all except the custodian but he managed to get right in the line of fire, hard shots at close quarters from Kelly and Hortop being safely got away. Pester, who had been playing an effective game for the suppers, got hurt but soon returned to the field. Sevon minutes before time Kelly obtained his reward for a hard afternoon's work. Combining nicely with Hortop be hurst through at the proper moment and gave Dugdale no chance with his shot. From the restart the suppers got under weigh again and Lewis firmshed off good forward play by squeezing one just inside the post. There was five minutes loft to play but nothing of interest happened and the result was :-Royal Engineers ..... 8

MIDAME ALBANI'S CAREER.

"It was in1872 that I first appeared at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Gar-CHECKS sold and den. On that occasion I played in the same opera I had first appeared in a Messina, "La Somnambula," I suppose to most singers it is a trying ordeal to appear for the first time before a London audience. I am bound to say, howover, that I was not nervous at all. I have been so accustomed to sing all my life long, as far back as ever I can remember, that it never seems to occur to me that, singing should make me feel shy or diffident. The only form of nervousness from which I have suffered during my public career is this-that sometimes, about a quarter of an hour before I have to appear, I feel rather apprehensive that my voice may fail through a cold or in some other way. This is ...f. 45,000,000 = (£ 3,750,000.-) | rather strange, as few can say they have been as free from illness as I have been during the many years I have been before the public, whom I have disappointed only on the rarest occasions. To return to the subject of my first appearance in London, I may say that it was a great event in my life. The sudience greeted me with a crescendo of enthusinsm. So little had been heard of me in England that their attitude at first was one rather courteous than cordial. After I had sung my first aria, 'Come per me screno," however, there was loud

There is a general but erroneous line pression that Madame Albani adopted her stage name because she first appeared in public in the capital of New York State. As a matter of fact it is the name of an ancient Italian family now extinct, and it was suggested to her by un Italian friend who knew nothing of her connection with Albany.

PEER AS HEALER.

Lord Sandwich's Claim to Psychic Powers.

Lord Sandwich, a Peer of 74 years of ago, has stated that he possesses a re markable and unexplained gift of healing, by the aid of which he has cured many people, although he possesses no medical or surgical science. He believes also that other people possess this power The .. occasion . of Lord Sandwich's statement, unorthodox as it may sound from the point of view of the ordinary conception of medical science, was orthodox in the highest degree. He was presiding at a meeting at University College to inaugurate a medico-psychological clinic in London for the treatment of sectain diseases by means of psychotherapy. "There can be," he said, "no loubt as to the immense power of the nind over the body, and the further that subject is investigated the greater he results we shall get. I do not proend to medical or surgical science, but I have had great experience in healing. There are many she possess the power. I have been asked to applain it, but I have nothing to explain; I only know what happened If I am possessed of this power there miss be many possessed of the lesser power suggested in the formation of this clinic which they can exercise with great psetulness. I hope the institution we are inaugurating to-day will do much for the healing and happiness of large numpers of people."

Dr. Constance Long, who spoke, said has many doctors had successfully practised psycho-therspy, but so far there Their patients were those suffering from had been no provision for the poor depression, a morbid attention to bodily ailments, loss of sensations, inscennis, the drug habit, and manifold manifestations of ill-health for which no sdequete provision existed. attending the death of Captain H. Froggars, kato of the C.M. s.s. Irone, who was found last week with a bullet wound through his head about a mile from the Eubbling Well Road police station, was continued yesterday morning, says, the N. C. Dany News " of the 10th inst. before Mr. W. R. Strickland, H.M.

proceeding, said that in fairness to the witness Erabbel, he ought to say he did not want to censure him on Friday last. All that he (the Coroner) wanted was to got things quito older in his own mind. The newspaper report was quite correct, but things which appeared plain in one's mind when spoken often looked different in print. If Mr. Krabbel did what he honestly thought was bost for the injured man he did not think they should blame him on the ground that many people might have acted otherwise in the risk and go on board and see what the circumstances.

Dr. Murray stated that on Friday he made a post-mortem examination of the swash, although the water at this time body. The wound was two inches be- was quite smooth. Feeling now quite hind the right eye, and there was some scorehing of the skin: The bullet passed through the brain, fracturing the skull amidships, we hurriedly collected what on the other side, and lodged in the we could to get away as quickly as posskin, where it was found two inches above the left car. The built had taken an almost straight line. Death probably instantaneous. It was impossible to say whether the wound was selfinflicted. although it was quite consistent with thee theory. There was nothing to show whether the deceased was in a standing or sitting position when the wound was inflicted.

Captain W. H. Lunt, marine superintendent of the China Merchants' Company, stated that the deceased had been with the company since October, 1903. He considered him a very able man of strong character. He was sober, and abtentive, and witness thought him a very good man.

The Coroner: Was any inquiry made into this business of the Japanese ship? Captain Junt said the only inquiry ho knew of was when the people went on board the Irene in Shanghail There had been an inquiry in Amoy, and when the vessel arrived in Shanghai the Japanese Vice Consul and the Deputy Commissioner of Foreign Affairs went on board to identify the goods, and witness went with them.

The Coroner: Is the incident closed. do you think? -As far as I know, it is. I believe a report was sens by the deceased to you from Amoy?-Yes, I

From what you know of Captain Frog gart do you think he would have done anything in the nature of what is suggested by these reports?

Captain Lunt said he thought that was the whole cause of the death of the deceased. Having had a strained time in Amoy, he though the reports affected him that way. He could not sleep, and he was rather in a nervous condition. Was he very much upset when he got to Shanghai?-The witness said that when he saw Captain Froggart the next morning he was very reticent, but he could see that he was labouring under mental strain. He could see that the Captain was suppressing his feelings. Was he the kind of man, do you think, that this sort of tuing would affect in a peculiar way ?-I would not like to see that : I have never seen him excited that know of. Captain Lunt added that in this case he knew the deceased was very much affected. Mr. William Henry Tenny, assistant manager of Mesers. I. Beck and Company, stated that he was a friend Captain Froggart. He last saw him about a quarter to twelve on Wednesday night, the deceased having dined with him at his house. About a quarter of sec hour before he left, the deceased mentioned the matter of the Japanese steamer to him, and said he was in great trouble. He gave him the impression that he was very much upset. The Coronor: Had you any reason to suppose at that time that his mind was unbinged?-Having known him for two years in different circumstances I hever saw him in such a condition as he was on that occasion.

Did he give you any indication that he was going to take his life?

The witness replied that the deceased did not give him any specific indication. He thought he was a man of too strong a character to do a thing of that work. The deceased appeared to be terribly over wrought over the Japanese Mair, and he was a very sensitave man. When he left the house, the decreased promised him that he would go to his ship, and witness thought he had done so. The Corpore and he thought the in quest had better he selectioned until the Irene came into port, became he thought one of the officer of the ship could give definite evidence of the deceard a mette of mind. PRESIDENT YUAN SHIH RAI MANY people still appear to be under the impression that President Yuan Shih Kai has succeeded in sett ng up what they believe to be is a virtual dictatorship. They go even I further : they state that the Pro sident has been aspiring or rather intriguing for such a condition of Mairs for quite a long time. Their continuance in such a belief is chiefly based upon the recent summary disof members of Parliament connected with the Kno Ming Tang an action which they believe was the outcome of selfish ambition on part of the President rather than ! matured opinion that it was the m present state of China's affair. Ming Tang was certainly a very drastic step, but it was one which had shown more timn a tacit sympathy. expected of them in support of their President who at such a juncture had a right to expect their atmost support It was well-known to the President

President intriguing to become Dictator but rather that of a courageo is and clearhended man at the helm of state determined to prevent his charge being dashed on the breakers by the irresponsible action of a lot of tockless men actuated principally by personal animosity towards a man who refused to be awayed by them. President Yuan's policy all along had not been theirs; indeed, at times, was diametrically opposed to it. As was the case, for had President Yuan been the pliable individual that most of the hot-headed members of the Kuo Ming Tang expected him to be under the new regime, the progress of. the country, little as it has been, would have been very much less; and, indeed, it is not improbable that China might at the present hour have found herself with even more serious difficulties confronting her. President Yuan has proved himself to be a consistently strong man and the one best able to assist his country in her present critical juncture. He, and he among his thoroughly realises China's position her efforts to become a modern progressive nution, and his actions are those of a patriot zealous for the true welfare of his fellowcountrymen. The necessary machinery was not present to enable him Messrs. Hughes and Hough's Sales to deal with those who lent such conspicuous assistance to rebelsrebels, chiefly because they stirred up scrious trouble at a most inopportune time to the detriment their country's welfare-even more than in their defiance of constituted nuthority. He, more than others, e imprehends that China will do well to rely upon the assistance of the Foreigner for a long time to come and more than others does recognise that the Foreigner is actuated in his efforts to assist China by an impulse creditable to our common humanity just as much as by the fact that the time is now ripe for the natural resources of such country as China to be used for the common benefit. Instead of being the selfish Dictator that he is erroneously stated to be in certain quarters, President Yuan has proved himself to be an adroit and able statesman who has acted wisely and well for the benefit of his fellow countrymen at a time in their country's welfare th t called for the utmost care and prudence If he had done nothing else than curb the bellicose attitude and the immature policy of such men as revolutious frequently " dress with a little brief authority" he would be theroughly deserving of his country's gratitude. As each player took his stand at the "Diamond," he was also announced by name, and, according to his popularity, received the plaudits of the enthusiasts. The Chicago team battod first, sending Weaver to the bat. He gave an exhibition of long hitting, knocking the ball into deep left field where it was cought by McGee. The game was devoid of sensational features and was called after one hour's play with the score standing, New York 6; Chicago 3, owing to the players having to embark for Manila.

Since leaving Vancouver the base ballers have had rather rough weather on the whole. Not only were the ships on the northern route across the Pacific delayed by storms, but also those taking the southern passage. The fact that they were a short time overdue by the Emprose of Japan was quite in keeping with what, has been happening claewhere. The sides between them include ten

As a missionery school naturally we lay strem on the moral and religious side of school life and work. Here, too, we are encouraged by signs of advance. The tone throughout the school has been good. The Monitors have shown themselves espable of being trusted and their efforts to encourage self-control and self-management in the school have met with a large measure of success. The daily study of the great Christian Classic which sets forth the one and only perfect character which this world has seen, has realited in a noticeable deepening and strengthening of the character of many of the boys. During the year ten of those connected with the school gave public evidence of their desire to live up to the highest and bost standards in the act of Baptism; and the Scripture Union, which is managed by the boys themselves, has an enrollment of over 30 members, a number of whom have taken part in the weekly meetings. One outcome of this study has been the desire to help others and entirely at their own request, the boys are subscrib-ing to support two Christian masters in the country districts where the opportunities of a good education are so much fewer than Another step we are taking is one which many of us have long felt to be of utmost importance, namely, the opening of a boarding establishment in connection with this school. Sir Francis Piggott, sanior Counsel for the defence continued his address when the case was resumed this afternoon. He contended that the seizures of property. made by the Independent Government of Kwangtung, or, as he called it, the Republic, of Kwangtung, were effective seizure and onsted the passession of the old provincial covernment. With the declaration of independence the old provincial government disappoared, and when the independcuon was cancelled and rebellion effectually stamped out the rights, both of government and property reverted to the Central Government. What he said was that the declaration of independence overshadowed every branch of this case. The whole of these proceedings ignored the period of the Republic of Kwangtung. They assumed that the old provincial government passed into the new provincial government. The old provincial government was finished; and the new provincial government had n locus standi to punish the rebels against the Republic. The offence committed by Chan Kwing Ming, as was clear from the Presidents' mandate outlawing him, was against the republic. Therefore the whole charges in these proceedings were bad charges. because the alleged property in the Kwangtung Government. The Canton Government was trying to get this money -there were civil proceedings pending in another court—and in this court they extradital to punish him for not applying this money to rebel purposes.
